Historisk Flue

Kva er ei historisk flue? Dette er eit spørsmål som er vanskeleg å svare på. Det er mange ulike meiningar om kva som er ei historisk flue: nokon meiner kanskje at ei det er ei flue som er bunde for over 50 år sidan, medan andre meiner den må være bunden for over 100 år sidan. Andre igjen kan meine at ei historisk flue er ei flue som er bunde av ein kjent fluebinder, eller ei flue som har vore brukt av ein kjent fiskar.

Vi er alle farga av vår eiga historie og erfaringa, så eg skal ikkje prøve å gi ein definisjon på kva dette er. Men, eg kan prøve å gi eit innblikk i kva ein kan legge i dette.

Må den være gammal?

Under lanseringa av denne sida på Historiske fluer møtet var det ein som lurte på: "kva er din definisjon av ei historisk flue? Må den være 30 år gammal feks.?"

fluebinding.no er ikkje laga for å være ein ressurs for gamle fluer, sjølv om oppstarten kanskje er litt prega av dette. Men dette spørsmålet fekk meg til å tenkje litt, og der og da gav eg svaret som er viktig for meg når det gjeld begrepet historisk flue: ei flue som er laga i dag er framtidas historiske flue, så vi må ta vare på noverande og gamle fluer på lik linje.

Kva er viktig?

Ei flue i seg sjølv kan være interessant og historisk viktig utan at det finst så mykje meir informasjon om den en eit ca. tidsrom den blei brukt. Men det finst mangen lag av informasjon som gjer at ei flue kan kan bli enda meir interessant, og som gjer at ein kan forstå meir om den:

Kven laga fluene?

Kven var personen som laga flua? Var det eit stort selskap som laga eit stor antall fluer? Var det ein lokal kjentmann som laga til eiget bruk i ei elv hen kjente, eller var det ein kjent fluebinder som lagde flua på bestilling til ei elv nokon skulle til? Kvar var personen frå, og kva var bakgrunnen til vedkommande?

Dette er litt av av bakgrunnen til at personar er ein viktig del av fluebinding.no, slik at ein kan få eit innblikk i personen bak dei forskjellege fluene.

Kva fiskesortar vart dei tenkt brukt på?

Kva fiskesortar vart dei brukt på? Var det fluer som var spesifikt laga for laks, ørret, røye, gjedde eller andre fiskesortar?

Med immitasjonsfiske kan dette være eit innblikk i kva byttedyr som var vanleg i området, kva som var gjeldande i den daverande tidsepoke, eller berre kva som var populært å fiske med for ein fiskesort.

Dette kan igjen føre til eit innblikk i insekter og utbreiing av desse i området. Er desse insektene fortsatt i dette området, eller har faunaen endra seg?

Kva område vart dei brukt i?

Var det fluer som var spesifikt laga for elver, hardangervidda, eit navngitt fjellvatn eller andre område?

Området ei flue er meint å bli brukt i kan fortelle mykje om kva forhold som var gjeldande, gi eit innblikk i at det var mykje ørret i vatnet, eller kva som var vanleg byttedyr i området. Eller rett og slett kva som var populært å fiske med i området.

Kven fiska med dei?

Kven var det som fiska med dei? Var det kjente fiskarar, eller var det fluer som var laga for eit større publikum?

Vist vi kan koble fluer til ein fluebinder kan det være interessant å sjå om det er fluer som er laga for eit større publikum, eller om det er fluer som er laga for å teste ut nye idear/prototypar.

Kva tidsepoke er dei frå?

Kva tidsepoke er dei frå? Er det fluer som er bunde for 50-100 år sidan, på 90-talet eller er det fluer som er bunde i dag?

Vi kan gjette ein del på tidsepoken ut i frå materialar og teknikk, men å ha ein faktisk tidsepoke kan vere viktig for å unngå å gjette.

Vi kan sjå på krok-type (blind-eye eller ikkje), bruken av syntetisk materialer, teknikkar som er brukt eller og andre ting for å gjere eit estimat. Vi kan og, vist vi veit kven som laga flua, gi ein omtrentleg alder på flua.

Oppsummert

Sammen gjer dette til eit innblikk i historia til flua. Eit eller fleire av dei overnevnte punkta kan være kjent, og for kvart lag vi kan identifisere kan vi få eit meir komplett bilete av både flua, dei kulturelle og historiske aspektene rundt den.

Vi har alle vår meining om kva ei historisk flue er, og kanskje du har eit anna syn på dette en punkta over, og det er bra! Det er dette som gjer det interessant å diskutere og lære meir om fluebinding og kva slags kontekst vi kjem fra.

Ta gjerne kontakt om du har meiningar eller innspel til dette.

Eit innblikk i ein flueboks

Møte med ein gammal flueboks er som å opne ei bok om historia til fluebinding. Fluer som er bunde for 50-100 år sidan er ikkje berre fluer, men ein tidskapsel for fluefisket på den tida. Dette er grunnen til at vi treng fleire bilder og informasjonm om flueboksar under "Fluemønster -> Samlingar".

Fluefiskerens viktigste redskap.

Forfattar: Jan Håvard Krohn

Mange fluefiskere følger lojalt med på utstyrsutviklingen, og vi strekker oss ofte langt for å anskaffe utstyr som kan gi fordeler langs elver og vann. De som har hengt med en stund, husker sikkert fargerike papirkataloger fra bransjens større aktører. For meg var papirkatalogene årlige høydepunkt – noe å glede seg til, noe å studere og noe drømme seg bort i. Noen av drømmene ble realisert, og sesongen kunne starte med nytt og spennende utstyr. Hardt arbeid og sparing gav resultater, den gang som nå.

Hvert år kommer nye modeller av stenger, sneller, snører, fluer og annet utstyr som skal være sterkere, lettere, stivere og bedre enn sine forgjengere. Det kalles utvikling, noe vi naturlig nok tiltrekkes av. Alternativet er stagnasjon, eller i ytterste konsekvens regresjon – to begreper som sjelden skaper optimisme og glede. Utstyret er riktignok inngangsbilletten til fluefiskets magiske verden, men et ensidig fokus på utstyr alene er verken utviklende eller en garanti for suksess.

Hva om jeg fortalte at fluefiskerens viktigste redskap ikke kan lages, markedsføres eller kjøpes for penger? La meg forklare med en historie.

Opplevelser i elva.

Siste arbeidsdag før sommerferien var en fredag. Bare tre dager senere fulgte varebilen den tørre grusveien langs elva. Vannstanden var omsider synkende, etter en periode med høy temperatur og stor smelteaktivitet i fjellet. Tidligere på dagen hadde et ofte produktivt elveparti blitt besøkt, uten å leve opp til sitt rykte. Ingen regel uten unntak.

Det var lunsjtid og bilen hadde stø kurs oppstrøms, mot en liten gapahuk i fjellbjørkeskogen. Vått og tørt smaker tross alt bedre i naturen enn i førersetet på en aldrende varebil. I en slakk høyresving fanget uvanlig aktivitet nær land oppmerksomheten, og det ble bråstopp. Da støvskya la seg, ble elva igjen synlig fra det åpne vinduet. Småfisk svømte og hoppet panisk i det grunne elvepartiet. Området var nesten stillestående, som en diger bakevje. Bildøra smalt igjen, og fra en lav posisjon i veiskråningen studerte jeg fenomenet videre. Snart ble analysen til en hypotese, jeg gikk deretter ned og ut i elva for å undersøke fenomenet på nært hold. Bunnen var mudrete, og jeg sank stadig dypere omgitt av mørkegrønt siv som ennå ikke nådde overflaten.

Med ett kom fiskestimen tilbake, like raskt som tidligere. Fra en utvadet posisjon ble den lett identifisert som ørekyte – og i samme øyeblikk avslørte også årsaken til panikken seg. En mørk skygge kom brått mot stimen av ørekyte, som nå hadde søkt tilflukt rundt vadebuksa. Skyggen bråstoppet på én meters avstand, før den gjorde helomvending og deretter forsvant i det mørke vannpartiet. All aktivitet stilnet.

Opplevelsen var både spennende og lærerik. På noen intense sekunder ble ørekytas nemesis avslørt: En stor ørret var aktiv. Øynene begynte å avsøke bakevja. Fantes det et dypere område i nærheten, et område som kunne gi ørreten trygghet, selv på høylys dag? En smal renne, kanskje tre meter bred, strakte seg fra land og skrått ut til hovedløpet. Definitivt dyp nok til å være et trygt tilholdssted. Jeg ble derfor stående og vente.

Omsider kom belønningen, i form av et forsiktig vak.

Kampen og erkjennelsen.

Mellom land og dyprenna lå en smal forhøyning, akkurat tørr nok til at sporadiske grasstrå vokste på toppen. Dit kunne jeg vade ut og skape plass til bakslengen, uten å skremme ørreten. De små bølgene fra vadebevegelsene stoppet mot forhøyningen, og ørreten bak, vaket sporadisk videre. Vel fremme, var det bare fem–seks meter frem til de subtile vakringene.

En brun tørrflue, type Jingler str. 14, satt fortsatt på fortommen etter at begge Lepthoplebia-artene (marginata og vespertina) var blitt observert tidligere på dagen. Ørreten vaket riktignok ikke på typisk tørrfluemaner, men det virket likevel fornuftig å prøve. Etter noen resultatløse presentasjoner byttet jeg ut tørrflua til en CdC klekker, som tidligere hadde levert i lignende situasjoner. Ørreten tok flua etter andre presentasjon, mens klekkeren fortsatt hvilte tungt i vannfilmen. Gleden var kortvarig – flua løsnet, og aktiviteten opphørte på nytt.

Jeg var på vei tilbake til bilen da sideblikket fanget opp konturene av et forsiktig vak. Enten var ikke ørreten skremt, eller så befant det seg flere fisk i dyprenna. En mykhacklet March Brown spider på lett krok str. 14 fikk tilliten nå. Jeg fuktet flua, la ut fortommen og et par meter fluesnøre og fulgte deretter med, mens flua sank rolig gjennom og under vannfilmen. Minutter passerte og først da jeg tilførte flua noen forsiktige bevegelser, bare nok til å aktivere de myke rapphøne-fibrene, hugg ørreten.

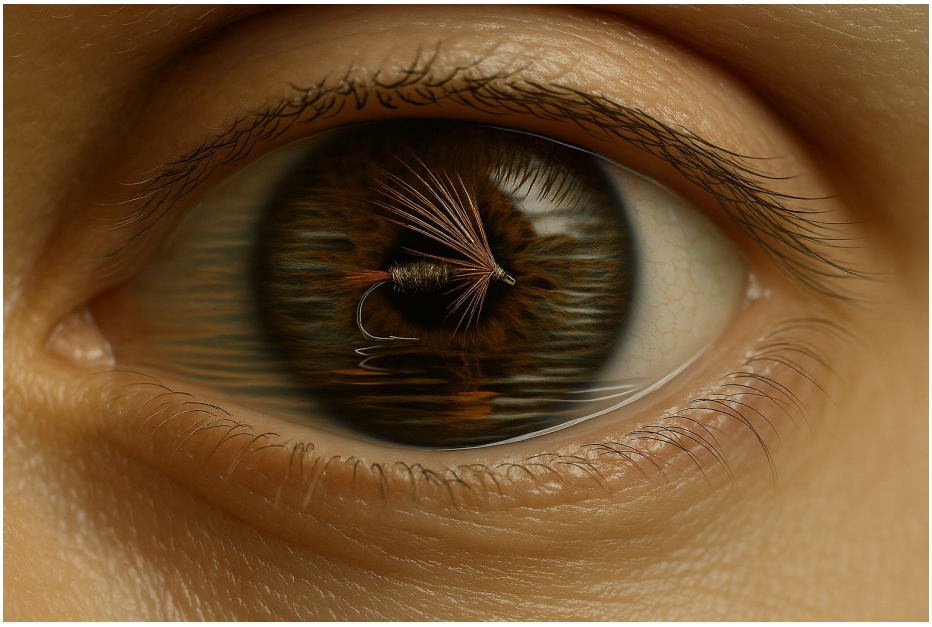

Kampen som fulgte, var intens. Ørreten raste frem og tilbake i dyprenna før den omsider svømte inn på grunnere vann. Heldigvis dro den ikke ut i hovedelva, men holdt seg i den store bakevja. Fiskens størrelse ble tydelig da den endelig viste seg på nært hold – en vital kraftplugg, vakker som bare en ørret kan være. På innsiden av håven kunne jeg studere det marmorerte ryggmønsteret, krydret med røde og svarte prikker langs sidene, mot en vakker olivenfarget bakgrunn. Etter beundrende blikk og noen par raske bilder, fikk den friheten tilbake.

Det viktigste redskapet.

Hva var så suksessfaktoren? Med så korte presentasjoner er det vanskelig å kreditere utstyret. Vi gir ofte fiskeutstyret stor oppmerksomhet, men dersom fluefiske reduseres til en materialsport, mister det raskt sin fascinasjon – og kanskje også sin dypere mening?

Henry David Thoreau skrev: “The question is not what you look at – but what you see.” Han understreket viktigheten av persepsjon og forståelse, fremfor bare overfladisk observasjon. Det handlet om å se dypere inn i ting, utover dets fysiske utseendet, for å oppfatte den sanne meningen eller selve essensen. Å virkelig observere, krever et våkent og nysgjerrig blikk.

Den nysgjerrige, oppmerksomme og analyserende fluefiskeren får fordeler som aldri kan kjøpes for penger. Årsaken er enkel men likevel lett å glemme, fluefiske utføres ikke først og fremst med utstyret – men med øynene.

Henry Olsen – flua som kom hjem

Forfattar: Jan Håvard Krohn

En sommerdag i slutten av juni, rundt sankthans, sto jeg alene i elva rett nedstrøms en gammel bro. Det var søndag, og lyden av kirkeklokker bar over vannet. Noen av stedets fastboende hadde samlet seg til gudstjeneste i den lille kirken. Selv hadde jeg ingen slike planer, der jeg sto utvadet i naturens egen katedral.

Vårflommen var over. Vannstanden i elva var igjen lav, og vannet klart og innbydende. Det var hjemreisedag, men for å utnytte de siste fisketimene før turen tilbake til familie og hverdagens plikter, hadde jeg valgt å fiske et elveparti som ofte huser pen ørret.

Fra broa, og det dypere partiet like nedenfor, renner elva videre over en flere hundre meter grunn strekning, med innslag av mørkegrønne oaser av akvatisk vegetasjon. Her, i de dypere rennene mellom bunnplanter, føler ørreten seg trygg – selv på høylys dag. Noen mindre ørreter avslørte seg med sporadiske vak. På overflaten så jeg bare et fåtall insekter.

Vakene var jevnt fordelt over hele strekningen, fra elvebredden på min side og helt over til motsatt bredd. Jeg så ingen luftbobler etter vakene og antok derfor at ørreten tok insekter i, eller like under vannfilmen.

Med meg hadde jeg en kopi av fluefiskehistoriens kanskje mest berømte fluestang – utviklet av Reuben Leonard og prøvefisket av Arthur C. «Hap» Mills i tre år før den omsider ble satt i produksjon rundt 1915. Leonard 50 DF (Dry Fly) ble opprinnelig laget for det da nye tørrfluefisket som hadde spredt seg fra de engelske kalkelvene, over Atlanteren til USA. Med sin forholdsvis dype og rolige aksjon er stanga for meg også utmerket til presentasjoner av våte fluer. Både G.E.M. Skues, Jim Leisenring, Theodore Gordon og George LaBranche fisket i sin tid tørrfluer, våtfluer eller nymfer med stenger fra H. L. Leonard Rod Company.

Med bare to timer til rådighet bestemte jeg meg for å se hvor mange ørret jeg kunne få i den avmålte tiden. Skal man avfiske en større elvestrekning effektivt og samtidig skremme fisken minst mulig, finnes det få metoder som slår fiske med våte fluer. En tørrflue som striper nedstrøms i svak bue på overflaten kan lett skremme ørreten, spesielt i så klar og grunn elv som denne. En våtflue, derimot, som beveger seg på samme måte nede i vannet, virker langt mindre forstyrrende for ørreten.

Jeg stilte meg midt i elva. Strategien var å fiske høyre og venstre side annenhver gang med tverrstrømskast og mending, som til slutt fikk utvikle seg til en rolig våtfluesving nedstrøms. Når flua var ferdigpresentert mot begge sider, tok jeg noen skritt nedstrøms og gjentok prosedyren.

Elva var grunn her, knapt én meter dyp, og jeg trengte en våtflue som ikke sank for raskt og dypt – det ville bare resultert i kontakt med bunnvegetasjonen. Jeg plukket løs en flue fra utsiden av hofteveska. Den var grå, nærmest anonym, bundet på lett krok størrelse 14. Kroppen besto av grå underhår fra kaninpels, spunnet i svart silketråd og ribbet med hvit silketråd. Foran satt et grålig grizzly hønehackel, omtrent like høyt som kroken var lang.

Jeg fuktet flua i elvevannet, dro ut noen meter snøre, la ut et tverrstrøms kast mot høyre og mendet to ganger for å gi flua naturlig drift. Nærmest umiddelbart kjente jeg et rykk i snøret og løftet stangtuppen. Dagens første ørret var et faktum. Den var ikke stor – kanskje rundt et halvt kilo – men blank og vakker, nesten som en liten sjøørret. Den ble raskt gjenutsatt.

Jeg fortsatte systematisk nedover elva. Ørret etter ørret tok den våte flua. Uten å bytte annet enn en slitt fortomspiss fikk jeg overraskende mange fisk på samme flue. Ingen store, men alle var spreke og blanke. Flua fikk gjennomgå av skarpe ørrettenner og ble stadig mer rufsete i kroppen og glissen i hackelet – men den fortsatte likevel å lure fisk etter fisk.

Da de to timene var gått og mesteparten av strekningen avfisket, tok jeg flua av fortommen og festet den i sixpencen. I dag ligger våtflua på en hylle over fluebindebordet mitt – som en påminnelse om hvor effektivt et gammelt og glemt våtfluemønster kan være.

Første gang jeg kom over denne amerikanske vingeløse våtflua, trodde jeg navnet måtte være feil. Flere norske våtfluer har «Olsen» i navnet, men assosiasjonen til USA var ikke umiddelbar. Siden forfatteren av boka var den norske fluebinderlegenden Erling Sand, bestemte jeg meg for å undersøke saken nærmere. I Donald Du Bois' bok The Fisherman's Handbook of Trout Flies fra 1960 fant jeg flua – med samme navn og identisk bindebeskrivelse som i Erlings Sand sin bok. Slik ble jeg først kjent med Henry Olsen, og i dag er vi bestevenner.

Henry Olsen skal være laget av Peter J. Swab fra Pennsylvania, som navngav flua etter sin gode venn, Henry Olsen – en utvandret nordmann. Olsen drev i mange år The Fisherman's Hotel ved bredden av Kettle Creek, en kjent ørretelv i Pennsylvania. Elva er omgitt av vakkert fjellandskap og villmark, og huser stor brunørret samt noe bekkørret, og regnbueørret i de nedre partiene.

Kettle Creek renner også gjennom Ole Bull State Park, oppkalt etter den norske fiolinisten og komponisten som i 1852 kjøpte store landområder her i et forsøk på å etablere en norsk koloni. The Fisherman's Hotel finnes ikke lenger, men elva renner der fortsatt – like vakker. I dag er den kjent for sine vårflueklekkinger, og døgnfluer som Blue Quills, Hendrickson, Sulphurs, Light Cahills og Green Drake.

Fluebinding

Selv om Henry Olsen opprinnelig er en tradisjonell vingeløs våtflue, har jeg noen ganger også valgt å binde den med flymfe-teknikker. Det gir en langt mer holdbar flue, og forklarer trolig hvordan jeg kunne lande såpass mange ørreter på samme flue – og fortsatt kunne knyte den på igjen neste fisketur, om jeg ville.

Flymfe-teknikken ala Leisenring innebærer at kroppen av lys grå underhår fra kanin spinnes mellom to voksede silketråder før selve fluekroppen lages. Riktig utført gir dette en svært slitesterk kropp med bedre gjennomskinnbarhet enn tradisjonell dubbingmetode. Det myke hackelet av grizzlyhøne surres 2–3 runder bakover fra krokøyet og festes med bindesilken. Deretter føres silketråden i åpne runder fremover gjennom hackelet før et lite hode og avslutningsknuten lages. Denne hackleteknikken gir etter min mening tre klare fordeler: Hackelfibrende får bedre støtte, fibrene spres bedre, og selve hackelet blir langt mer motstandsdyktig mot skarpe ørrettenner.

I våt tilstand endres fluas uttrykk. Den svarte silketråden mørkner kroppen, mens de grå myke underhårene gir et pulserende gjennomskinnelig – nesten spøkelsesaktig – preg. I våt tilstand får også den mørkere kroppen god kontrast mot ribbingen av hvit silketråd.

Uansett bindeteknikk har Henry Olsen blitt en av mine viktigste vingeløse våtfluer. Jeg bruker den både på skogens stille vann, på fjellet og i elv, gjennom hele sesongen. Den imiterer kanskje ikke et bestemt insekt, men representerer noe levende med sin allmenninsektlike form og farger. Henry Olsen er et gammelt fluemønster som virkelig fortjener å hentes frem fra glemselens skuff.

For meg, er den flua som omsider kom hjem…

Henry Olsen

- Krok: Str. 12–16, lett eller tung avhengig av ønsket presentasjonsdybde.
- Bindetråd: Svart silketråd, vokset.
- Kropp: Lys grå underull fra kaninpels. Dubbet, eller spunnet ala Leisenring.
- Ribbing: Hvit silketråd, vokset.
- Hackle: Grizzly høne.

Erling Sand: Legenden fra Heggeriset

Forfattar: Jan Håvard Krohn

For mange fluefiskere gir det å binde fluer en ekstra dimensjon til lidenskapen. Vi binder fluer fordi det er gøy, utfordrende og kanskje også fordi vi har tanker og ideer rundt fiskefluer som er lettest å realisere ved å binde de selv. Fluebinding er en fin måte å «forlenge» sesongen på, og en mer givende aktivitet i de kalde vintermånedene skal en lete lenge etter. Ved bindestikka dukker minner fra tidligere fisketurer frem og her starter gjerne leng selen etter nye.

For noen ganske få, har fluebinding blitt mer enn en lidenskap i lidenskapen. Fluebindingen har blitt en jobb, ikke nødvendigvis i negativ forstand, men en måte å skaffer seg inntekter til livets nødvendigheter på. En av våre mest betydningsfulle personligheter, som gjorde fluebinding til levebrød og livsstil, var Erling Sand (1917 – 2002) fra Heggeriset i Engerdal. I mer enn 40 år var fluebindingen den viktigste inntektskilde for han og hans familie. For å gjøre denne fasinerende historie komplett, er det nødvendig å gå tilbake til begynnelsen, med Erling sin far John Sand (1874 – 1967).

John Sand

Johnn Sand Bilde: Glomdalsmuseet - fotograf: Dagfinn Grønoset

John Sand begynte å binde fluer til eget bruk tidlig på 1900-tallet. Noen tror han fikk en innføring i fluebindingens edle kunst av de engelske Smith-brødrene som holdt til i Galten-området om sommeren. Andre mener det var Olaf Holmseth fra nabobygda Trysil som lærte John de grunnleggende ferdighetene innen fluebinding. Uansett, en sommer hadde han på akkordbasis tatt på seg arbeid i forbindelse med veibygging i området. Etter en lang og hard arbeidsdag, gikk ofte John og noen andre veiarbeidere ned til elva for å fiske middagsfisk i den lyse sommernatta, og John fikk mest fisk av de alle. Arbeidskameratene mente at fluene sannsynligvis var årsaken til suksessen og spurte av den grunn om å få kjøpe noen tilsvarende. Ryktene om at John Sand sine fluer gav så gode fangster gjorde at stadig flere fluefiskere fra nærområdet tok kontakt for å sikre seg noen eksemplarer. Etter hvert gikk også ryktet østover og fluefiskere i Sverige begynte å få øynene opp for Sand-fluene. I takt med at etterspørselen økte, opprettet småbrukeren og senere lokalpolitikeren Sand sitt firma, John Sand A/L. Han skrev kontrakt om faste leveringer av fluer og for å videreutvikle seg som fluebinder, måtte John søke impulser og kunnskap fra utlandet. Han begynte derfor å kjøpe faglitteratur om fluefiske og fluebinding fra datidens mest betydningsfulle autoriteter i England. Det var bare en utfordring, disse bøkene var skrevet på engelsk, et språk som John og de fleste andre fra hans generasjon ikke hadde lært på skolen. Løsningen ble derfor å lære seg engelsk på egen hånd, noe John også gjorde. Den eldste boka i den etter hvert omfattende samlingen av fluefiskelitteratur er fra 1834. Han må ha vært velsignet med en god porsjon initiativ og utholdenhet, for etter at dagens arbeidsøkt med fluebinding var unnagjort, brukte John kveldene blant annet til å lage sitt eget flue-kartotek og å skrive bøker om fluer og fluebinding. Rundt 25 maskinskrevne bøker skal det ha blitt. Disse ble dessverre aldri publisert, og det er kanskje ikke så rart. I de vanskelige årene i mellomkrigstiden fantes det neppe et marked for slik i Norge. I dag derimot, burde noen med de nødvendige midlene tatt ansvar for å publisere og bevare denne kulturskatten.

Erling Sand

John og hans kone fikk tre sønner og en datter, Eivind, Erling, Gunvald og Marie. I takt med at etterspørselen av Sand-fluene økte, ble det både naturlig og nødvendig at også barna i Sand familien ble involvert i farens firma. Da Erling var 12 år gammel, skrev han sin første kontrakt med faren om betaling på 8 øre pr. godkjent flue. Som modell fikk han en Hardy våtflue. Denne skulle han kopiere og binde riktig i hver minste detalj. Hardy fluene ble den gang ansett for å være verdens fineste fluer, fortalte Erling. Den første tiden ble det nok liten fortjeneste. Etter at barna var ferdig med dagens fluebinding var det opp til far John å velge ut de godkjente fluene som de skulle få betaling for. Med sin Mora-kniv skar han av dressingen på de fluene som ikke tilfredsstilte hans standard og barna fikk tilbake den verdifulle kroken, slik at de kunne prøve på nytt. I ettertid erindret Erling om sin far at han ikke var direkte streng, men krevende og nøye. John var derimot svært flink til å rose «lærlingene» sine for de fluene som ble godkjent. Erling og andre barn på denne tiden gikk bare på skole 14 dager i måneden. Det ble derfor godt med tid til både fluebinding, plikter og fritid. Samtidig som Erling begynte å binde fluer for farens firma, utviklet han også en interesse for fluefiske. Til å begynne med fisket han etter ørret, harr og sik i Engeråa. Etter hvert utvidet han fluefiskehorisonten og oppdaget fiskemulighetene i Femundselva og selve Femundsmarka. Her ble han også mange år senere oppsynsmann for Engerdal fjellstyre.

Under 2. verdenskrig omkom Erling sin bror Eivind, da tyske fly slapp sine bomber over Elverum.

Etter krigen startet Erling opp sitt eget firma, der hans kone Oline og sønnen Egil også ble viktige medhjelpere. I likhet med far John, hadde også Erling avtale med lokale damer om å binde fluer. Mange har kanskje kjørt forbi eller vært innom det lille fluebinderverkstedet til Erling Sand på Heggeriset, på vei til eller hjem fra en fisketur. Det ligger like ved veien og er lett få øye på, da en elgfigur i betong fungerer som blikkfang utenfor den lille bygningen.

Faren John drev sitt firma John Sand A/L videre, helt frem til sin død i 1967. Da tok datteren Marie Sand Kolbu over og fortsatte driften med hjelp av 12 personer som hadde kontrakt på fluebinding. Marie endret firmanavnet til Engerdal Fiskefluer A/L og hun drev dette frem til sin død i 1999. Marie bandt selv sin del av fluene, på det meste skal hennes produksjon vært oppe i 12 dusin pr. dag. Marie og Erling sin bror Gunvald etablerte seg med tiden som en av Norges mest respekterte malere, med dyr- og naturmotiv som sin spesialitet.

På Heggeriset bandt Erling tørrfluene, de andre tok seg av våtfluene. Med tiden utvidet Erling utvalget og det ble bundet både våtfluer, tørrfluer, nymfer, klassiske laksefluer, hårvingestreamere og tubefluer. Spesielt tiden før en ny fiskesesong kunne være krevende. Nye og store bestillinger på fluer kom inn og arbeidsdagene kunne derfor bli lange. Arbeidsdager med fluebinding på både 12-14 timer pr. dag var ikke uvanlig. Ofte kom det også fluefiskere innom verkstedet på Heggeriset, både for en fiskeprat, fisketips og kjøp av noen nye fiskefluer. Erling hadde god oversikt over fiskemulighetene i området og var raus i forhold til å dele informasjon med fiskere som spurte om råd. Noen kom også inn med en flue i hånden som de hadde hatt godt fiske med og ville at Erling skulle binde opp noen nye eksemplarer av. Det var ikke alltid like enkelt, for noen ganger var flua så velbrukt og medtatt at det ikke var så lett å se hva den var laget av. Erling tok da fram forstørrelsesglasset sitt for å kunne identifisere hvilke materialer flua var bundet med. Dette lærte han mye av og alle nye fluemønster han kom over ble lagt til flue-kartoteket som hans far John hadde påbegynt. Mot slutten av Erling sitt virke hadde dette fluekartoteket vokst til over 20 000 ulike fluemønster. Hver enkelt flue er håndtegnet og material/binde-beskrivelsen er skrevet under. Familien Sand sitt fluekartotek er regnet for å være en av verdens største samlinger av fluemønster. Erling fortsatte også å utvide boksamlingen som faren hadde startet og i bokhylla på Heggeriset finnes mange klassikere om fluebinding og fluefiske fra de mest betydningsfulle amerikanske og europeiske autoritetene.

Skribent

I rundt 20 år hadde Erling ansvaret for fluespalten i bladet Vi Menn, og med et så rikholdig fluearkiv sier det seg selv at han hadde mange ulike fluemønster å skrive om. Det var også han som laget ørretflue-varianten av Vi Menn flua. I tillegg til fluespalten i Vi Menn, skrev Erling to bøker om fluebinding og fluemønster. I 1989 skrev han i samarbeid med Børre Pettersen Den Store Fluebindingsboken, som er vakkert illustrert av Gunnar Johnson. Hvilken Flue, kom ut i 1991 og består av 384 ulike fluer i bilde og bindebeskrivelse.

Verre Enn Minken

Erling Sand Bilde: Norsk Skogmuseum - fotograf: Kjell Søga.rd

Selv er Erling opphavspersonen til rundt 70 fluemønster som alle fikk norske navn, av disse er nok Verre Enn Minken den best kjente. Denne flua var en stund en godt bevart hemmelighet, som han selv fisket med uten at flua da hadde fått et navn. En dag traff han noen fluefiskere fra storbyen som fisket i en elv i området. Bykarene hadde oppdaget en fin ørret som vaket bak en stein ute i elva, men uansett hvilken flue de brukte ville ikke ørreten ta. Erling som betraktet det hele på avstand, håpet på at fiskerne snart ville gi opp, slik at han kunne få prøve. Til slutt gikk de lei og lot Erling få slippe til med sin flue. Han fikk til et bra kast og flua fløt elegant nedover mot steinen og fisken. Ørreten tok tørrflua i den første presentasjonen og like etter hadde han fått den inntil land. Da utbryter den ene fiskeren nærmest i vantro: «De er jammen verre enn minken de!». Etter det var det ikke lenger noen tvil, den nye flua som Erling hadde fisket med i hemmelighet ble hetende Verre Enn Minken. Etter at den ble laget for salg, ble den så populær at han ikke klarte å dekke etterspørselen. Verre Enn Minken ble også laget som våtflue.

Også folk fra lokalmiljøet kom innom Erling når han jobbet i fluebinderverkstedet og butikken sin. En av disse var en ung jente som hadde begynt å binde sine egne fiskefluer. Med en viss ærefrykt viste hun fram fluene sine til nestoren og han gav gode råd om hvordan hun kunne binde disse enda bedre. Rådene må ha vært til både nytte og inspirasjon, for mange år etter var den unge jenta fra Engerdal blitt voksen og hele verden ble etter hvert kjent med både henne og hennes fluer. Torill Kolbu, verdensmester i fluebinding.

Erling døde i 2002, 85 år gammel. I dag blir han først og fremst husket for sitt livslange virke som fluebinder, men han hadde også andre interesseområder. Han var glad i naturen og reiste ofte på fisketur når han hadde tid til det. Sitt naturengasjement fikk han også utmerkelser for. På tømmerveggen inne i fluebinderverkstedet henger bl.a en diplom fra Norges Naturvernforbund, som Erling fikk for sin innsats i forhold til å verne Trysilvassdraget. Erlings våtflue Femundsreguleringa vitner om hans naturengasjementet.

Fluebinding

John Sand ble i sin tid også kalt for Fluekongen og han fikk ofte spørsmålet om hva som egentlig var den beste fiskeflua. Svaret han gav da var alltid det samme, hans egenkomponerte vingeløse våtflue Sand`s Favourite var den beste. Av denne grunn ble våtflua også omtalt som Fluekongens Flue. Det var denne flua alene, som hadde skaffet han mer fisk enn alle de andre fluene til sammen, fortalte han. En god våtflue skulle være vingeløs og ha et sparsomt bundet hackle, hevdet han.

Sand`s Favourite, vingeløs våtflue (John Sand)

- Bindetråd: Svart
- Tip: To runder flat sølvtinsel
- Hale: 2-3 brunspettete fiber fra en rapphønes halefjær
- Kropp: Den mørkeste typen gråbrune hår fra harens øre
- Ribb: Flat sølvtinsel
- Hackle: Mørk brunspettet fjær fra rapphønas rygg.

Sand`s Favourite. Fluebinder: Jan Håvard Krohn

Erling Sand skal ha innrømmet at han ofte laget fluer på bestilling, som kanskje behaget sportsfiskeren mer enn ørret og harr. En god tørrflue skulle flyte godt og ha vingene rett opp, men ikke ha mer hackel enn nødvendig, mente Erling.

Verre Enn Minken, tørrflue (Erling Sand)

- Bindetråd: Svart
- Hale: Fiber fra mørk brun hanefjær
- Kropp: Fjærstråle fra kondor farget sennepsgul (senere brukt han fiber fra påfuglens fremre vingefjær farget sennepsgul som erstatning).
- Hackle: Mørk brun hanefjær
- Vinge: Brunfarget vingefjær fra and, noe lysere enn hackelet

Fluebinding

> Fluebinding for meg er delt opp i fleire delar: det viktigaste er nok det praktiske fisket, det å stå i elva eller ved eit vatn med fluene eg har trua på. Flueboks(ane) har blitt færre med åra, og nokre mønster står nok fram, men dette er og ein del av prosessen - korleis får eg dei fluene til å bli kanskje hakket betre.

> Fiskar etter det meste, og er pragmatisk når det gjeld både fiske og fluebinding: om det er ørret/harr (tørt/flymfe/vått/euronymfe/streamer) eller kystfiske med store byttefisk-imitasjon etter Lyr på vestlandet så er det alltid ei utfordring med å finne ut kva fisken tar på og kor i vasslaget den står.

> Når det gjeld praktiske fiskefluer er eg nok ikkje den som er supernøye på ein absolutt imitasjon, men har trua på størrelse, basis-fargar og presentasjon over korrekt oliven-nyanse eller om det er to eller fire haletrådar på døgnflua.

> Det kulturhistoriske er og ei drivkraft bak fluebindinga mi: historikken og tradisjonane som fluebinding er og har vore i tidlegare tider.

Utstyr og materialer

- Tilknytning til produsent: ingen
- Har tidlegare jobba for Flyfish Europe

Utstyr

- Bindestikke: Regal :octicons-link-external-16: - arbeidshesten for mesteparten av produksjon
- Bindestikke: Cottarelli T-Rex :octicons-link-external-16: for dei store og handlaga krokane til klassiske laksefluer
- Trådholder: Tiemco keramisk :octicons-link-external-16:
- Saks: C&F :octicons-link-external-16: for dei virkeleg delikate og presise kutta, har ellers ei ganske god samling med forskjellege sakser
- Hårstabler: Zippy fra Loon :octicons-link-external-16:

Materialer

> Er glad i gode naturlege materialer - dubbing rett fra skinn-bitar eller hackle fra heile fugleskinn gjer at ein kan velge nyansar, blande dubbing eller velge riktig størrelse på hackle basert på erfaringar i ei spesifikk elv eller art.

> Ein viktig ting for meg er bevegelsen eller avtrykket materialet vil ha når ein fiskar det: CDC for beina til ei vårfluer, mjuke eller stive vingematerial for byttefisk i elv eller saltvatn, høne-hackelet til ei våtflue for bevegelse ved små rørsler av handa eller stanga.

Inspirasjonskjelder

> Inspirasjon er skiftande, basert på kva eg på noverande tidspunkt sett meg inn i, så denne lista skiftar litt etter sesongane og tidspunktet.

Norske

- Erling Sand: klassiske norske fluer
- Erling Olsen: enkeltkrok laksefluer for praktisk fiske
- Eivind Berulfsen: sjøørret fluer som fangar og har tanke bak seg
- Christoffer Gaarder: streamer for ørret
- Jan Håvard Krohn: flymfer og våtfluer
- Long Nguyen: klassiske laksefluer

Utanlandske

- William Blacker: for gamle klassiske laks/ørret mønster fra midten av 1800-tallet
- Andreas Andersson: streamer for ørret
- Gunnar Johnson, James E. Leisenring, Vernon S. Hidy: våtfluer & flymfer
- Niklaus Bauer: store streamers/baitfish
- Stefan Larsson: for dei virkeleg små tørrfluene
